The Anchor line steamer Furnessia, from Glasgow Nov. 15, also made this port to-day, and Capt. Harris tells of a tedious and stormy voyage. He says the steamer faced southwest and west gales overy day. On Nov. 20 a tremendous sea was running, and during twenty-four hours the Furnessia made only fortyfive knots. The observation bridge was damaged somewhat, and the ship sustained considerable damage about decks.

The French liner La Bretagne arrived this morning from Havre. She experienced strong gales, accompanied by a tremendous head sea. On Nov. 24 the steamer passed through the centre of a cyclone. One scaman was dashed against the rail and had a leg broken. Among the passengers arriving on La Bretagne

Mme. Melba appeared in "Lucia di Lammermoor" at the Metropolitan Opera-House last night, and sang again the fole in which she was first heard in America. The opera is no longer popular, for it has become old-fashioned, but it gives Melba admirable opportunities for her delightful vocal lacework. She sang as blithely as ever, and in the "mad scene" she awoke the usual enthusiasm. Melba's dramatic improvement is becoming more and more apparent, and it is easy to see she is making great efforts to atone for the lack of theatrical temperament—a want that she herself admits. It is now a year, less six days, since Melba made her American debut, but in that time her art has matured considerably, and moreover, it is still maturing. The role of Edgardo, that was sung last year by Sier Vignas, was splendidly interpreted by Tamagno, whose tours de force are the loy of the Metropolitan Opera-House patrons. The line that divides noise from music is sometimes perliously near effacement during Tamagno knows fervent efforts, but physical power goes a long way, and Tamagno knows his business. Mile. Bauermeister was the Alice, and the cast also included Bensaude, Viylani, Abramoff and Rinaldini. Sig. Mancinelli conducted. There was a large sudience. To-night a special performance of "Carmen" will be given.

"Lady Reckless" is the name of a new play, in which Kate Claxton and Mme.
Janauschek will appear next week at the Bowdoin Square Theatre, Boston, it is an adaptation from a French play, founded upon Miss Braddon's "Aurora Floyd," and made by Arthur Forrest. In case it is not successful, Miss Claxton will produce Mme. Janauschek's own effort, "At Last," which is not quite ready yet. In the mean time, the good old "Two Orphans" is still to be seen, Miss Claxton can't abandon the play; the public won't let her. She must be able to play Louise in her sleep.

See what a well-trained melodramatic shrick will do—a nice, raspy, unoiled, five-act shrick. It's all very well to laugh at it as a relic of barbaric days, but it is a mighty handy thing to have in the house, as Jeffreys Lewis will teatify. Miss Lewis went to bed in the West a few days ago—but that's not the point. She went to felding-bed. She was just dropping off into a snose, when the bed shu up, leaving nothing but her ten symmetrical toes exposed to view. It was then that the good old melodramatic shrick, that Miss Lewis has used so frequently, long before folding-beds were invented, occurred to her. She called it into service at once. It was a blood-curding moment, and many a shrick she shroke. Just in the nick of time, people rushed in and rescued her, as she was about to suffocate. Had she been less melodramatically pro-

George Alexander has been snubbing the gentlemen who call the cynical spley, drawing-room dramas of to-day "unpleasant." He objects and does so effectively. "People talk about what they call unpleasant plays," he asys, "but the business of the play of the time is to hold the mirror up to the human nature of the time. It you want all the dramatis personae to be immaculate, why you must reform society, and make it immaculate." Quite so, and just so.

They do say that Fay Templeton—fair.

The Bostonians are talking of reviving "Fatinitza," and it is to be hoped that the talk will result in a new hearing of that opera. It would be a treat to listen to this organization in the tuneful "Fatinitza," and then the risks would be very few. The idea of this revival has been brewing for a long time.
